What's School Like in Norway?

Have you ever wondered what it's like to go to school in Norway? In some ways it's a lot like going to school in the United States, but there are some differences that might surprise you!

Classes

In American schools, kids often have the same schedule every day and move from room to room. In Norway, each day of the week has different classes, and students usually stay in one place while their teachers come and go.

Sports

Sports are very popular in Norway, but teams are usually separate from school and it is all about meeting people, learning new skills and having fun. In fact, Norwegian sports leagues don't even keep score until age 13!

Recess

If recess is your favorite part of the school day, you might love going to school in Norway! Norwegian students take short breaks throughout the day to play, relax and talk with their friends. After enjoying some exercise and fresh air, they come back refreshed and ready for more learning.

Lunch

Most kids in Norway bring their own lunch to school, usually with bread and toppings for an open-faced sandwich, as well as sides or snack items like fruit and yogurt. It is common for students to eat lunch together in the classroom, rather than in a cafeteria like most American schools have.

Hours

The school day in Norway is shorter than in the United States, with classes starting around 8 a.m. and ending around 1 or 2 p.m.

Grades

Norwegian schools usually don't give formal grades until lower secondary school, which starts with eighth grade when students are about 13 or 14 years old.

Fun Facts About Knitting

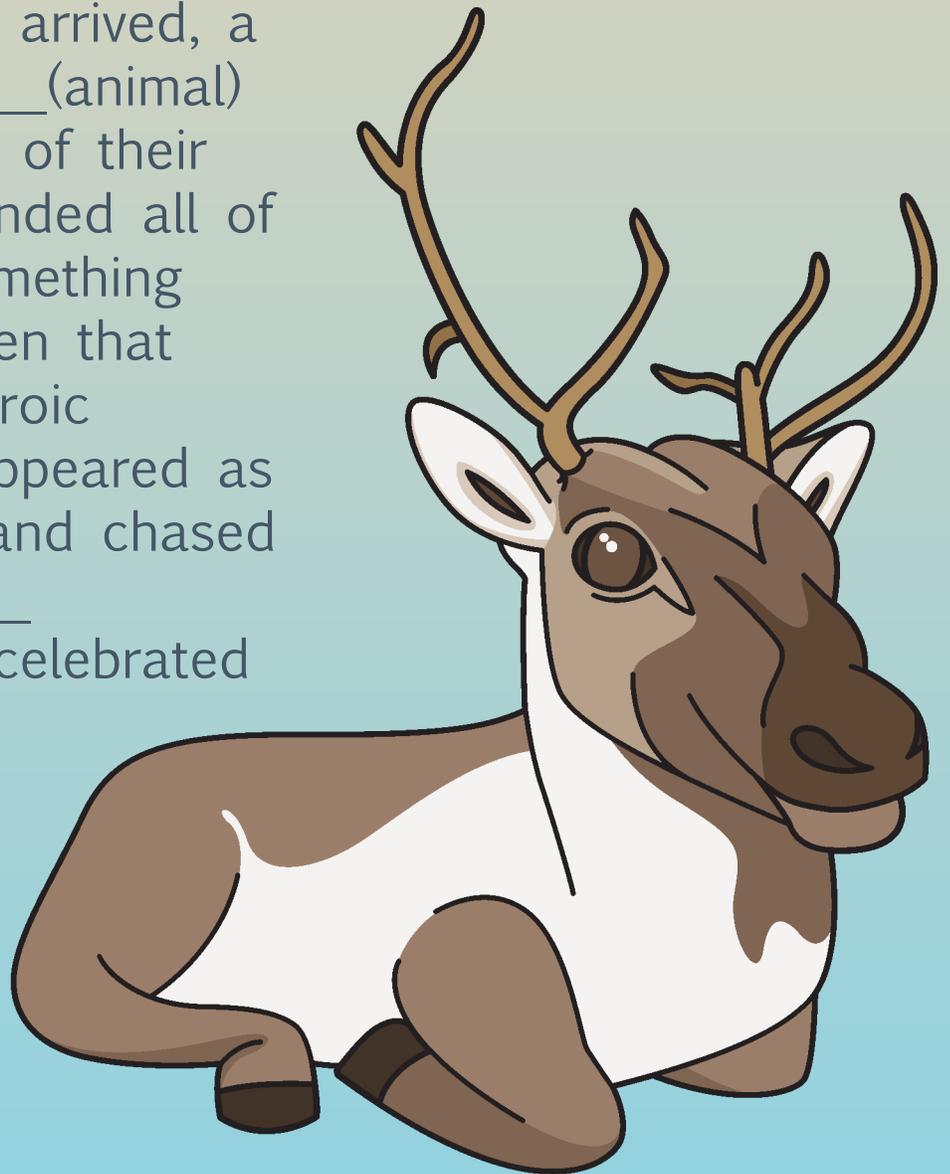

You might think about mittens and sweaters as being ancient clothing, but just how old are they? And who came up with such cool patterns?

- The earliest knitwear found in Norway dates back to 1479. (Which means Vikings never sailed around in sweaters.)
- Sweaters were first worn by farmers and fishermen as underwear for chilly outdoor chores.
- People believed that different patterns brought good luck and protected you from evil.
- Using two kinds of yarn makes the garment more colorful, and warmer too.
- Teenager Marit Guldsetbrua Emstad knitted the first “snowflake mittens,” and the look went viral. Soon everyone in her town, and then all of Norway, wanted to wear them!
- Some sweater patterns are named after towns or areas, such as Fana and Setesdal.
- The “snowflake design” is really an 8-pointed rose. It has become a national symbol of Norway.
- Knitting used to be taught in Norwegian grade schools to both boys and girls.
- Norway’s most popular knitted pattern, the Marius sweater, became a trend after movie star Marius Eriksen first wore the design on film.
- The Norwegian Olympic team wears an official sweater designed by Dale of Norway for each Winter Olympics.
- Lill Chatrin Schei designed Coronavirus mittens to help pass time during quarantine and remind people to take care of each other.

Finish the Fable

Once upon a time there was a/an _____ (adjective) reindeer, who lived in a giant _____ (cool place to live). One day a/an _____ (noun) came to visit, bringing news about a magical _____ (item) hidden in the nearby _____ (place). The reindeer was very _____ (a feeling) to hear such interesting news and quickly made plans to visit the _____ (same place nearby). Once they arrived, a desperate _____ (animal) leaped out in front of their carriage and demanded all of their _____ (something valuable). It was then that a charming and heroic _____ (noun) appeared as if out of nowhere and chased away the _____ (animal). Everyone celebrated and then continued on their journey.

Whipped Hot Chocolate

Stay warm all winter long with this hot chocolatey drink! Be sure to get help from an adult if you are using the stove or an electric mixer.

Ingredients:

- 1/2 cup cold heavy whipping cream
- 2-4 Tbsp. sugar
- 2 Tbsp. unsweetened cocoa powder
 - > You can also replace the sugar and cocoa powder with a packet of Swiss Miss or other hot chocolate mix.
- 3 cups milk

Instructions:

1. Place the cream in a medium bowl or large liquid measuring cup.
2. Sift the cocoa powder and then add the sugar (or use your packet of hot cocoa mix instead).
3. Whip with a wire whisk, electric mixer or milk frother until the cream forms soft peaks. Start slowly to avoid spilling, and be careful not to over whip or you'll get whipped cream instead of soft whipped hot chocolate cream!

Fill two glasses or mugs with hot or cold milk (you can even use chocolate milk if you like it extra chocolatey). Top the glasses with a generous amount of whipped hot chocolate, stir thoroughly and enjoy.

What can I add to my whipped hot chocolate?

- » Pumpkin spice; sprinkle it on top!
- » Marshmallows; you can even use the marshmallows from Lucky Charms for an even sweeter treat.
- » Oreos or cookies; crush them up and sprinkle on top, or serve them on the side for dunking.
